"Met alle respek gesê..."

Klein kindertjies is egosentries en het nie outomaties waardering of respek vir hulself, ander, of die wêreld en hul omstandighede nie. Net soos wat hulle nie vanself 'n woordeskat of 'n wye kennis het nie. Respek leer hulle nes 'n woordeskat – die meeste uit hul gewone interaksie met die mense rondom hulle, deur wat hulle hoor, sien en naboots. En dan ook deur doelbewuste pogings van hul opvoeders. Die meeste kinders sal die optrede van iemand in hul leefwêreld naboots. Kinders met selfrespek het beter grense en neig daarna om beter besluite te neem.

Rooi Rose – Mei 2018

"Said with all due respect..."

Small children are egocentric and do not automatically have appreciation or respect for themselves, others' or the world and their circumstances. Just as they do not automatically possess a vocabulary or broad knowledge. They learn respect as they learn to speak a language – mostly from their interaction with people around them, through what they hear, see and mimic. In addition to this, also through deliberate efforts by their educators. Most children mimic the behaviour of someone in their life. Children with self-respect have better boundaries and tend to make wiser decisions.
